1900 and 1902

THE platform adopted by the recent Republican State convention is meeting with considerable criticism. It is said to be ambiguous and contradictory, difficult to understand and meant as a trap to catch the unwary voter. If, however, we take the silver plank of the platform of 1900 and the same plank in the platform of 1902 and compare them, it will be seen that the same influences that controlled the convention of 1900 controlled the convention of 1902 and that it was not the intention of the platform builders that the people should understand the silver plank of 1902 any more than they did that of 1900. The 1900 plank reads as follows:

"We favor the lawful use of silver, as a money, in all manners compatible with the best interests of our government; and we hereby pledge our nominee for Congress, in the event of his election, to exercise his best endeavors to secure the greatest possible use of silver beneficial to the mining States of this Union without endangering the financial safety of our country, and as a demonstration of the correctness and justness of our attitude on the silver question we point with pride, appreciation and satisfaction to the return of many voters of this State to the ranks of the Republican party."

Compare that bundle of political wisdom with the silver plank in the platform adopted at Reno, and note their similarity. They are near enough alike to have emanated from the same brain. But judge for yourselves. Here it is:

"We favor the largest use of silver as a money metal in all matters compatible with the best interests of our government; and we hereby pledge our nominee for Congress, in the event of his election, to exercise his best endeavors to secure the greatest possible use of silver beneficial to the mining States of this Union without endangering the financial safety of our country, and as a demonstration of the correctness and justness of our attitude on the silver question we point with pride, appreciation and satisfaction to the return of many voters of this State to the ranks of the Republican party."

It is longer than the plank of 1900, but the extra length adds nothing to its clearness and force. The pointing with pride part was thrown in as a sort of slave to heal the scars of the drubbing the Republican party of Nevada received in 1900. Pointing with pride is a Republican habit.—Independent.

SINCE it is known and admitted that the Dingley tariff favors the creation of trusts and protects monopolies, why not revise it, so as to retain protection where it is needed, but take off duties where they serve no good uses and help the trusts to rob the people?

The secret of the opposition to reform of the tariff is not devotion to the principle of protection, but control of the Republican organization by the "large capitalists of the United States."

Such control makes it idle to hope for relief from trust abuses through the present Republican party. It must be born again before it will turn upon the trusts and smite them.—Bee.

MISS EGBERT TITUS seems to have aroused a storm of indignation in the annual convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union in New York. She saw an immense lithograph depicting David B. Hill, Senator Dewey, Admiral Schley, Mayor Low and District Attorney Jerome smiling at their upheld glasses of a certain brand of whiskey, and it shocked her inexpressibly.

Probably if Chauncey and the old sea-dog Schley could see it, it would so stun their delicate sensibilities that they would be forced to go around the corner for a soothing swig of the original.—Bee.

IN 1893 there was moved by each railroad employee 107,129 ton miles of traffic. In 1900 the service required of each railroad employee was 139,000 to miles. That means in effect an increase of service of over 30 per cent or a decrease in wages if the men were paid by the ton, of about the same per cent. This is how the laboring man has fared during the extremely prosperous times which we have been having during the past ten years.

WHEN labor unions acting strictly within their legal rights, become indirectly the cause of inconvenience to the community, trust-owned newspapers shriek in vicious frenzy for interference by courts or the Legislature; but when trusts by their extortions become the cause of like inconvenience, the newspapers say: Too bad but the law gives no redress.

FORMER Governor Boies, in his speech accepting the Democratic nomination in Speaker Henderson's district, declared in favor of removing the tariff from trust-made products. Now if the Iowa Republicans are sincere, they'll make the election of Governor Boies unanimous.

ALL the St. Louis hoodlums are anxious to turn State's evidence in order to save themselves from long terms in the penitentiary. What a pity it is that they didn't reach this conclusion before they began their career of hoodluming.
